FINE ART GCSE

(AQA 8202)

Exam Paper codes: Component 1: 8202/1 and Component 2: 8202/2

Percentage in examinations / coursework:

The GCSE in Art is a two-year course with 60% of the marks going to coursework and 40% for the final examination.

Exam structure:

The Coursework, (Component 1) is called the PORTFOLIO, and consists of:

One Sustained Project, a creative journey from initial idea to final outcome plus a selection of further work undertaken during the student's course of study.

This work is marked as a whole and needs to satisfy AQA's four assessment objectives which broadly cover the following: drawing from observation, developing ideas, experimenting with different media, making critical judgements, analysing the work of other artists, and bringing work to a conclusion.

These criteria are assessed on quality and quantity. The Art Department aims to meet these objectives at the same time as encouraging an individual and creative response in all pupils. Art at this level can be a rewarding and creative activity that complements other subjects in the curriculum as well as adding to and balancing the list of qualifications for further study.

The Exam (Component 2) is called the EXTERNALLY SET ASSIGNMENT and consists of a choice of questions set by AQA, given out from the 1st January to allow a sketchbook of preparatory work in answer to one chosen question. The preparatory work must meet the assessment criteria. The exam is 10hrs, usually spread over two or three days in early May. The preparation and the 10hr examination are marked as a whole. Although skill is rewarded and some pupils have more natural talent than others in Art, there is still room to enjoy and be creative whatever the level of ability as well as getting good results.

Topics taught: Fine art, drawing and painting.

Skills taught: observation, analysis, perspective, tone, colour, history of painting and sculpture. We also extend into monotype, 3D work, mixed media, and photography and video are also welcome additions in a student's portfolio.

Development of Dictatorship, 1918-45

6 – A World Divided: Superpower Relations, 1943-72

Course summary and skills taught:

Focus of History Teaching:

Teaching relies on discussion and evaluation. Documentaries and film footage are used to embed and embellish knowledge whilst lessons seek to develop students' writing and argumentation skills. Students will gain a broad overview of the twentieth century and, crucially be able to recognise both trends and factors affecting the whole globe. Students will soon grasp ideas like Communism and Nazism, and concepts like change and continuity. Students will gain an invaluable overview of international social and political dynamics. They will be considerably better informed for having studied this course and better able to understand the world around them, if not current affairs. This subject sharpens a useful range of skills which are not only useful in Higher Education but are highly prized by employers.

LATIN GCSE

(OCR J282)

Exam codes and exam papers:

01 Language External Assessment, 03 Prose Literature B External Assessment, 05 Verse Literature B External Assessment

Percentage in examinations: 100%

Exam structure:

□ J282/01 Language - 1 hour 30mn 50% of the grade

This paper consists of a linked set of Latin Passages for translation and comprehension.

□ J282/03 Prose Literature - 1 hour 25% of the grade

This paper consists of questions on a prepared prose text. Students will answer comprehension, critical, and translation questions.

□ J282/05 Verse Literature - 1 hour 25% of the grade

This paper consists of questions on a prepared verse text. Students will answer comprehension, critical, and translation questions.

Course summary:

The course covers Latin's Language and Literature. The language paper requires knowledge of grammar and an ability to approach every clause correctly. Grammar and approach are therefore our primary focus. The literature papers include a book of Virgil's great Aeneid and a selection of prose texts, typically from Caesar or Tacitus. We read, translate, and learn how to analyse the text in preparation for the literary criticism questions that will be asked.

Topics taught:

How to translate a sentence from Latin to English and vice versa; how to comment intelligently and intuitively on ancient texts and to enjoy reading them and the cultures they reflect.

Skills taught:

Important skills the students will acquire are the ability to give a close reading of a text and to pick up on linguistic details. This will stand any pupil in good stead for a career, let's say, in Law or Medicine. They will also learn how to enjoy and reap the rewards of literature that may, at first glance, seem too esoteric and require too much work.

Textbook: Essential GCSE Latin by John Taylor.

Useful websites: OCR Latin GSCE Web page.

Other information: The majority of pupils have, over the years, achieved the very top grade and 100% in at least one paper, sometimes in all papers.

MATHS IGCSE

(Edexcel 4MA1)

Exam codes and exam papers: 4MA1-1H and 4MA1-2H

Percentage in examinations: 100%

Course summary:

The course aims to provide the skills and knowledge required to achieve the highest possible IGCSE grade for each individual student, while also laying firm foundations for those likely to study Maths at A level.

Topics taught: The course covers 4 areas of study.

1. Number
2. Geometry
3. Algebra
4. Probability and Statistics

Skills taught:

In Year 1, students are taught in 3 mixed ability groups of approximately 20 pupils.

In Year 2, students are streamed according to ability and attainment. There is a 'fast' stream of approximately 25 pupils and two parallel slower streams of approximately 18-20 students each.

Exams are available at 'Higher Tier' for all of our students (and the grades awarded are 9 to 4).
