

Newsletter André Malraux

April-May 2023

For this school year's penultimate newsletter, you will find a sample of the activities and outings that make up the life of our school.

Something new: the children are now getting involved in the writing of some articles. We hope to see more of this in the future.

Let's start with some pictures of the CM2s reading to the Maternelles.

Media Week

Teachers at André Malraux School worked together with APL parents to organise Media Week. Who better to present than the school's own parents who work in the fields of journalism, communication, and marketing? They were put to work to prepare presentations on the following themes:

- The different media and how they have evolved through History
- Fake news and strategies to spot them
- Advertising and communication techniques

The objective of these interventions was clear: to allow the pupils to understand the world in which they live by developing their critical thinking. Thanks again to the parents who gave these quality presentations.

Art project in CM1

First, we read the story of Alexander Selkirk, a famous castaway, and wrote his story: I am a castaway.

Sofy, the art teacher, came to help us with our project to represent our island in a box.

First, we wrote down ideas for our box. Then, we painted our box according to a colour code: blue represents the beach and the sea, grey represents the volcanoes and finally, green represents the jungle. Then we decorated the outside of the box with maps of different countries. Afterwards, we made objects that were in our story for example: a tiger, feathers, huts, caves...

Finally, we collected objects from nature and glued them together. It took a long time, but in the end, it was very nice.

Educational Farm visit for the Maternelles

PS and MS pupils and their parents braved the bad weather to visit an education farm called Odds Farm.

Movie night with the APL

Successful premiere for the movie night with the APL... More than 90 tickets were sold. An experience to be renewed.

Coronation

At school, we can feel the benefits of our dual culture (or triple culture and sometimes more...) every day. It was therefore impossible for classes not to work on this historical event.

Roald Dahl Museum

CP & CE1 classes went to the museum of the beloved author, Roald Dahl. It was an opportunity to rediscover his books and discover new ones.

Les Incorruptibles - vote

In May, the school's classes participated in the great Les Incorruptibles reading contest. Each class elected their favourite book from a list of 7 books read during the year. The winner of the contest will be announced later.

Cm2s visit Kew Gardens

The CM2 class had great weather during their visit to Kew Gardens.

English class: study of butterflies

After studying the different stages of the development of butterflies, it was time to release them in front of the pupils.
